

Latest Feminine Fashions as Worn By Women on Stage

1. Hilda Spong, in "A Little Brother of the Rich."
2. Leah Bateman-Hunter at the New Theater.
3. Edna Dodsworth, a Show Girl in "Old Dutch."
4. Marie Mayo, recently with "The Man Who Owns Broadway."

New York, Jan. 1.—The return to town of the stage favorites, whose tours may have been indefinitely extended, is always a cause for pleasurable excitement among the playgoers; and Hilda Spong's reappearance in a Broadway production insures her a hearty welcome from a troop of old friends. By an adroit arrangement, the company playing "A Little Brother of the Rich" with Miss Spong as leading woman at the Grand Opera House in Chicago, came into Wallack's Theatre directly after Christmas and "The Fourth Estate," which has been successfully installed there for several months, goes out to the Chicago playhouse.

Miss Spong's costumes are always individual, and, therefore, interesting to the initiated feminine eye. Nothing that she ever wears is more becoming than the costume of black lace in which she is pictured; and, indeed, transparent black will be found almost universally becoming. Made over a black satin foundation, which has billows of frills on the train, the tunic drapes of floured, all-over, black lace falls in charming lines. The décolletée bodice is garnished with black embroidered banding and straps of black velvet; but the sleeve is especially noteworthy, because it has an open strip along the top and a full deep, graduated frill of the net at the elbow. A long chain and la Vallières of baroque pearls and turquoise add a touch of color.

In the rich princess gown of black panne velvet, shown in her picture, Leah Bateman-Hunter does not look as youthful as she actually is, for she is really only seventeen, the youngest adult member of the New Theater company, with the record of having played Lady Teazle at the age of seven, and becomes famous as Juliet at sixteen. Well, no wonder; for she comes of a lineage that is distinguished historically, her ancestors having been associated with the English stage for generations back.

Thus far Miss Bateman-Hunter has been seen in two parts at the New Theater and she has "made good" in both of them; as Iris, one of the two lovely attendants on Cleopatra in "Antony and Cleopatra," and as Emma, the stately servant of Mrs. Jones in "The Cottage in the Air."

There is no trimming to break the beautiful lines of the black panne empire gown just mentioned, save the broad band of jeweled gold which passes around the bust, under the arms to the back. There are square motifs placed at each corner of the décolletée and pretty drop earrings and also an ornament in her blonde hair, gives the girlish touches that her youth and winsomeness require.

There is a sparkle and dash about the music and dancing of the show girls in Lew Fields' latest musical comedy, "Old Dutch," that proves attractive to the audience. Nowadays, the young women of the chorus are gowned as elaborately as the principals and sometimes more so.

Bertha is one of the striking features of the gown, for its lower edge is trimmed with gold fringe, three inches wide, which gives it style. Miss Dodsworth wears orchids on her breast, and a la Vallière of baroque pearls. Her beautiful auburn hair is banded with curls hanging at the back, a la Sapho. Her good work has been duly recognized by her appointment as understudy to one of the prima donnas of the cast, who are Miss Ada Lewis and Miss Alice Dovey.

AT CARNEGIE LIBRARY.

One of the most attractive entertainments given in the city in many months was the baby show given in the Carnegie library auditorium under the auspices of the Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church Thursday afternoon. It was very largely attended and great interest was taken in the event.

About fifty of Ogden's best and prettiest babies were present and each person attending the show and paying the admission fee was given an opportunity of voting for the prettiest. This was no easy task, as there were so many attractive babies. During the afternoon refreshments were served, and all present enjoyed a pleasant occasion.

PLEASANTLY SURPRISED.

One of the most enjoyable events of the past week was the party given by Miss Leonore N. Eastman in honor of the birthday anniversary of her mother, Mrs. Ellen F. Eastman, at her home Tuesday evening.

The rooms were prettily decorated in the holiday colors of red and green. The evening was spent in music and dancing, after which a dainty lunch was served.

Those who spent a pleasant evening with Mrs. Eastman were: Mesdames T. Bartlett, D. W. Arave, L. L. Shupe, Scott Lovin, A. T. Waldram, R. S. Grange, Messrs. D. W. Arave, Henry Barnes, Albert Cherrington, George Debbendener, Fred Nye, Misses Florence Brown, Bernice Brown, Marion Nye, Opal Waldram, Zelpha Arave, Gwendoline Arave, Leonore Eastman and Jennie Kirkman.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The Historical society met Saturday, December 18, with Miss Josephine Seaman, Mrs. Foster presided at the meeting. A much appreciated feature of the afternoon was the excellent review of "The Master's Violin," by Mrs. A. B. Curry.

There was a good attendance and Mrs. John Seaman was a most welcome guest.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

The little friends of Jessie Burton gathered at her home on Wall avenue on Tuesday afternoon to celebrate her sixth birthday. Many games were played, prizes being won by the little Misses Cleo Lethbridge and Doneta Tite and Master Leonard Ross. Doneta Tite was chosen queen of the occasion.

A dainty luncheon was served, after which all returned to their homes laden with a fat stocking and a souvenir of the occasion.

Those present were: Cleo Lethbridge, Colene Ross, Mildred Williams, Violet Galt, Mary Tribe, Neva Reynolds, Dorothy Collins, Helen Williams, Tay Blair, Garlie Ballantyne, Doneta Tite, Jessie Burton, and Masters Brentnall Ballantyne, Paul Reynolds, Paul Lethbridge and Leonard Ross.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Leonore N. Eastman was very pleasantly surprised at her home on Thursday evening, December 30, the event being her birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in dancing, music and games, after which a dainty lunch was served.

Those who wished Miss Eastman many more happy birthdays were: Messrs. and Mesdames J. P. Taylor, George C. Nye, Mrs. T. Bartlett, Mrs. D. W. Arave, Mrs. M. B. Minnoch, Mrs. R. S. Grange, Mrs. E. F. Eastman, Messrs. George Debbendener, John De Bane, Elmer Barnes, Henry Barnes, Fred Nye, Misses Grace Minnoch, Jennie Kirkman, Gwendoline Arave, Marion Nye, Zelpha Arave, Della Bell, Cora Barnes and Opal Waldram.

TRAINMEN GIVE BANQUET.

The members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Ladies' Auxiliary held merry carnival in the Eagles' hall Friday night, where a banquet and dance was given in honor of the new officers of both organizations, following their installation.

O. W. Ewing, acting as toastmaster of the Brotherhood, presided over the gathering. When the business part of the program was ended the members of the organization and their invited guests were ushered into the banquet room, where tempting refreshments were served. At the conclusion of the banquet dancing was begun and continued until midnight.

The new officers of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen who were installed Friday night were: Charles Simpson, past president; N. C. Freeman, president; R. A. Irvine, secretary; A. B. Canfield, treasurer; C. W. Chase, conductor; "Dutch" Brohm, guard.

The newly elected officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary were installed by Mrs. Hattie Miller, the retiring past mistress, as follows: Mrs. Emma Courtney, past mistress; Mattie Turner, mistress; Sarah Ranon, vice mistress; May Richards, secretary; May Freeland, treasurer; Lillie Goucher, conductress; Barbara Lloyd, chaplain; Lena Priest, warden; Kate Redd and Hattie Miller, guards.

MRS. HEALY ENTERTAINS.

Mrs. Patrick Healy entertained a party of sixteen of Ogden's prominent society ladies last Tuesday afternoon at her pleasant home on Jefferson avenue, in honor of Mrs. Patrick Healy, Jr., of Buffalo, Wyoming.

The occasion was a most delightful affair, Mrs. Healy proving herself, as ever, a most charming hostess. Delicious refreshments were daintily served in the dining room, which was prettily decorated with carnations and ferns.

CLUB LADIES ENTERTAIN.

The Ogden club ladies gave an entertainment at the State Industrial school Thursday evening, which was greatly appreciated by the students and assembled guests.

The subject of the illustrated lecture was "South Africa," which, with songs and readings, completed a most interesting and enjoyable evening.

MRS. W. M. MUNK ENTERTAINS.

Mrs. W. M. Munk was the hostess at an elaborate dinner last Saturday evening.

The dinner was served from 6:30 to 8 o'clock, after which the guests were entertained at a theater party at the New Ogden theater.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson, Mrs. Addis, Miss Dimple Neal, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Munk and Mr. Munk, Jr.

HONEYMOON IN OGDEN.

With his charming bride, W. E. Traugher, managing editor of the Salt Lake Tribune, is spending a short honeymoon in the city. Mr. and Mrs. Traugher were married at Salt Lake Tuesday at the home of the bride, and came directly to Ogden to spend their honeymoon. Mrs. Traugher was formerly Miss Cora Leigh, one of the most brilliant women of the capital city. For the past few months she has been employed in the editorial department of the Salt Lake Evening Telegram. Mrs. Traugher's home is in Kentucky, but she has been living in the west for several years. Mr. Traugher is highly popular in Salt Lake and local newspaper circles, and is regarded as one of the state's brightest newspaper men.

After spending a number of days with Ogden relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ward returned to their home at Provo Friday afternoon.

Prof. W. D. Vincent, superintendent of schools of Blackfoot, Idaho, accompanied by Mrs. Vincent, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Browne during the holidays.

Dr. Ruth Hillard of Salt Lake City, who has been spending the holidays with her parents in Ogden, returned last evening.

Mrs. Mary J. Clark of Salt Lake City is spending the holidays with her daughter, Mrs. Ben E. Tyree, on Adams avenue.

After spending several days of the holiday season with friends in Ogden, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGowan have returned to their home in Blackfoot, Idaho.

The Women's Missionary society of the Methodist church will be entertained by Mrs. J. T. Rushmer, 2547 Adams avenue. Mrs. Mary Widaman, deaconess, will give a talk on "Travelers and Work." All ladies interested are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Ames have returned to their home in Ogden after spending a few days in Logan as the guests of Mr. Ames' parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ames, of Logan.

Mrs. D. A. Coughlin of Evanston, Wyoming, is spending the holidays with Ogden relatives.

E. J. Ward has returned to Provo after visiting his daughter, Mrs. W. O. Ramshaw of Ogden.
